

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THIS Bibliography comprises books, pamphlets, magazine articles, and papers of learned societies, relating wholly or in part to British municipal history; in other words, to the governmental or constitutional history of the boroughs of Great Britain, including gilds and parliamentary representation. Town histories which do not deal with any of these topics, purely topographical works, and parish histories are omitted.¹

The Introduction gives a brief survey of the principal categories of sources (the public and local records and the town chronicles) and a critical account of the modern literature. Part I. contains the titles of the general authorities, while Part II. is devoted to works concerning particular towns. The notes appended to the titles in Part I. should be useful to students interested in the history of any particular borough, who are often inclined to neglect the public records and other general authorities; they will find all the references to a given town, in both parts of the book, indicated in the Index under the name of that town.

An attempt has been made to give some estimate of the value and character of the most important books. This is a hazardous undertaking in a bibliography comprising so many titles; but the brief critical notes, however fallible and incomplete, may prove helpful in guiding students through the labyrinth of material.

The British Museum has the largest collection of works relating to municipal history, including many valuable manuscripts; but this collection is far from complete, lacking especially many privately printed books. In the Reliquary (1882, xxiii. 60), it is affirmed that the British Museum does not contain one tenth of the topographical literature of Great Britain. It would perhaps be nearer the truth to assert that it does not contain more than three quarters. Many local publications which are not in the British Museum, will be found, in London, in the Gildhall Library and in the Library of the Society of Antiquaries. Many histories of Scotch burghs are accessible only in Scotland, especially in the Advocates Library and in the Signet Library. The best American collections of British topographical literature are those in the Harvard College Library and the Boston Public Library.

The preparation of this Bibliography was begun in 1886. A selection, entitled "A Classified List of Books relating to British Municipal History," was printed in 1891, in the "Bibliographical Contributions of the Library of Harvard University," No. 43; and another selection, "Town Records of Great Britain," in the American Historical Review, 1896, ii. 191-200. It is unnecessary to rehearse the difficulties encountered in making this compilation,—to enumerate the many libraries, public and private, which had to be visited, the numerous catalogues, bibliographies, periodicals, publications of learned societies, and other devious by-ways which had to be explored. Despite all this labor, I am conscious that the work is incomplete, especially as regards the pamphlet literature. What I have aimed to do is not to furnish book-sellers and book-buyers with an exhaustive catalogue of books, but to make the material which is most useful for the study of municipal history more accessible to historical students, and thus to help prepare the way for a better understanding of the development of town life in Great Britain.

Among those who have kindly aided me, I wish to thank especially the late Mr. W. H. Overall, for facilitating my work in the Gildhall Library, London; Mr. F. T. Barrett, of the Mitchell Library, Glasgow, and Mr. Frederic Boase, of the Library of the Incorporated Law Society, for similar favors; Mr. A. W. Robertson, of the Aberdeen Public Library, for information concerning Aberdeen books; my colleague, Professor J. W. Platner, for the tedious labor of reading my proof-sheets; and Mr. George Stronach, of the Advocates Library, whose generous aid has been of inestimable value in enriching the lists relating to Scotch burghs.

INTRODUCTION.

No country of Europe has a soil more congenial The study of history in England. to the study of history than England. The genesis of her present institutions, their foundation in the remote past, the unbroken continuity of their development, the interest that the present awakens in the past and the past in the present, the urgent necessity of carefully studying the past in order to know and improve the present, — all should form a strong incentive in England to the study of history. Moreover, owing in great part to this very continuity of development, England has a collection of public records unequalled in richness by those of any other country of Europe. Thousands of well-preserved parchment rolls, easily accessible and full of valuable material, invite investigation. Nevertheless, England remains far behind some of her neighbors in the study of the past. This is particularly true of the study of municipal history. The object of this Introduction is to consider briefly the scope and value of the original sources and of the modern literature relating to the history of the English municipalities.

§ 1. Public Records.

Our records begin with a few passages in the Anglo-Saxon laws and Domesday Book. Though the entries Anglo-Saxon laws and Domesday Book. relating to towns in the Conqueror's great survey are not copious, they throw some welcome gleams of light on the internal affairs of the boroughs. For the twelfth century we must depend mainly upon a few town charters¹ and upon the meagre data of the Pipe Rolls.²

Charter and Patent Rolls.

In the first half of the thirteenth century the public records multiply, and thenceforward afford us much assistance. The Charter and Patent Rolls,³ which contain the privileges granted to towns and gilds, are particularly valuable, and are supplemented by the Confirmation Rolls, in which all the grants made by the crown to a borough since the twelfth century are often recited in a single document.⁴ The early town charters are worthy of more attention than they have as yet received. They are valuable not merely for the history of municipal institutions, but also as a repository of old Anglo-Saxon legal ideas. For the boroughs, however progressive in other directions, still clung tenaciously to certain Anglo-Saxon traditions long after the Norman Conquest.

Rolls of Parliament and other records.

Next to the charters in importance are the Rolls of Parliament, together with their prolific modern progeny, the Journals of the Commons, the Journals of the Lords, and the Parliamentary Papers.⁵ The material relating to towns in the Statutes, Plea Rolls, Hundred Rolls, Close Rolls, and other public records is scattered about in divers parts of the huge folio volumes of the Record Commission and in the ponderous rolls of the Public Record Office;¹ from them, by patient, laborious investigation, much information may be obtained, especially regarding the relations of the boroughs to the crown.

³ Nos. 119-21, 130, 133, 709-12, 714. The charters were merged in the patents in 8 Henry VIII. There is a valuable collection of transcripts of charters and letters patent in the Inner Temple Library, Petyt MS. 536, vols. xiii.-xiv., from which Merewether and Stephens (No. 79) obtained many of their documents.

§ 2. Town Records.

The town records form the main source for the study of internal municipal affairs. A few boroughs possess charters of the twelfth century. In a somewhat larger number the town records begin early in the thirteenth. But in most boroughs the oldest muniments are of later date, the collective volume of material steadily increasing as we advance toward the close of the Middle Ages and into modern times. In many archives we find municipal charters, chamberlains' accounts or other comptotus rolls, assembly rolls or council books (i. e., minutes of the burghal council), court rolls, rolls of a gild merchant, and books (with such designations as White Book, Red Book, Black Book, Oak Book, Chain Book, etc.)² containing ordinances and miscellaneous matters.

Many town archives have suffered much in the past from the negligence of their custodians. We are thankful that the Black Book of Winchester and a Domesday Book of Ipswich are accessible in the British Museum, which has perhaps rescued them from destruction; but if they had been properly safeguarded, they would now be in their old homes at

In addition to these devastating effects, large quantities were used for lighting the vestry fires, and others taken away by any persons whose inclination or curiosity induced them to fill their pockets ; what is yet left is a mass of dirty and useless rubbish."¹

Such examples of a lack of vigilance in the care of town records might easily be multiplied.² They make us inclined to wonder, not that so much has perished, but that so much has survived. Despite the lamentable losses due to apathy and carelessness, an immense mass of documentary material, reaching far back into the Middle Ages, still exists in the local archives. Owing largely to the efforts of the Historical MSS. Commission, much has been accomplished during the past twenty-five years for the arrangement and preservation of these muniments. Custodians of local record-rooms are gradually becoming imbued

Among these records were court books of Edward III.'s time and the Order Book of the corporation, commencing in Edward IV.'s reign. Shortly after the period when Poulson wrote, Mr. Gillyat Sumner, "by methods which it is unnecessary to particularize," got most of the town records into his possession. After his death they were advertised for sale with the rest of his library, and were purchased by the corporation of Hedon, who, however, refused to pay the purchase money. with the sentiment of the ancient town clerk of Guildford, who, after transcribing the old Black Book for the burgesses, pleaded that, in the future, they should not cast it away, " appering old and ragged, but rather to accompte of him the more in that he doth proceed from your auncient predecessors, and afford him that favour to let him have abode amongst you, where he may rest safelie."¹ There is, however, still room for improvement. In some boroughs the ancient records are a filthy, disorderly mass of parchment and paper, placed in some garret or out-house, where they are exposed to destruction from dampness, fire, and theft.

Lack of archivists. It is also deplorable that there are in England so few municipal archivists.² The records are usually in charge of the town clerk, who rarely has the requisite knowledge or training to appreciate their value, to supervise their re-arrangement, or to assist the investigator in finding documents. It should be added, however, that most of these officials are willing to do all they can to facilitate the work of investigators. The latter seldom meet with any difficulty in securing access to the archives, though in some cases it may be necessary to obtain formal permission from the Common Council. In this respect there has been great improvement during the last fifty years. Formerly it was very difficult in England to obtain access either to the public or to the local records.³ Before 1835, when "select bodies" had charge of the finances of rotten boroughs and monopolized the municipal government, the archives in some of these towns were kept hermetically sealed; for the civic magistrates seemed to fear that a knowledge of the past, drawn from such a reliable source, might betray to the public their usurpations of power, and cause the overthrow of the aristocratic regime.¹ All this is now changed. Probably in no other country in the world are the national and town records more easily accessible than in England. Even in the City of London, where some of the old unreformed spirit still survives, and the civic muniments are jealously guarded, the Common Council seems to be quite willing to unroll the records of the City for any genuine student of history, for any one who is really investigating the past and not seeking to change the present.

During the past two decades there has also been publication of town records,² though herein England is still surpassed by some of her continental neighbors and by Scotland.³ The corporations of cities like Bristol, Canterbury, Chester, Exeter, Leicester, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Norwich, Winchester, and York would confer a great boon upon students of history by publishing some of their rich stores of muniments, as Bath, Carlisle, Dublin, Gloucester, Liverpool, London, Manchester, Nottingham, Oxford, Reading, and some other boroughs have recently done.

² For a list of published town records, see American Hist. Review, ii. 191-200. All the titles in that list are included in this Bibliography.

§ 2. Town Chronicles.Contents.

The town chronicles of England form an unexplored field of historical literature of considerable interest. In the latter part of the Middle Ages and far into modern times we find, in London, Bristol, and other boroughs, mayors' chronicles or calendars, which, like the Roman fasti consulares, were drawn up in the form of annals, containing the names of the chief civic officers, together with brief notices of the municipal and national events which occurred during each mayoralty. These chronicles vary in fullness, some, especially those of London, widening here and there into a narrative of national affairs, while others are little more than catalogues of mayors, with a few meagre memoranda of municipal transactions; on many pages nothing beyond the names of the principal town officers appears.

Value.

The London chronicles are of considerable value for the history, not merely of that city, but also of the kingdom. London was the "hub" of the realm, the focus of national life; much of the history of England could be viewed from the windows of the Gildhall. Owing to the important part which London played in the history of the kingdom, the civic annalists were not inclined to ignore national events. And for this reason London is the only English city which has produced town chronicles at all comparable with those of cities on the continent. Most of the English boroughs were, during the Middle Ages, politically insignificant, having, as an old writer expresses it, "gret frownches [franchises] and smale liberte";¹ despite their chartered privileges, they were subject to the control of a strong royal power. There were in England no independent city-republics or great leagues of towns, like those of Germany or Italy, that could cope with popes and kings. Each borough maintained a quiet, uneventful provincial life, absorbed mainly in its own local affairs, except when, at long intervals, its repose was disturbed by some great civil strife from which the burgesses could not keep aloof. Therefore we find fewer town chronicles of national importance in England than on the continent,—nothing comparable with the splendid series of “Chroniken der deutschen Städte.¹

The oldest mayors' chronicles are those of London, ^{Age and prevalence.} namely, the Latin “Liber de Antiquis Legibus,” compiled in 1274, and the French “Croniques,” compiled about the middle of the fourteenth century. These were followed, in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, by several English chronicles of London.² Ricart's “Kalendar” of Bristol³ ranks in age and importance next to those of London. Many such calendars, or chronicles, were compiled in other boroughs during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and some of them were continued into the present century. They seem to have been particularly numerous in Chester and Bristol. Seyer, writing in 1821, says that most of those of Bristol were compiled within the last two hundred years, but that they were evidently derived from more ancient copies transcribed by various hands, having in general a great similarity but many differences in detail. “Several of the older,” he continues, “are written on narrow rolls of vellum. . . .

¹ Edited by K. Hegel, 25 vols., Leipzig, 1862-96. Most of the monastic chronicles of England have little value for the study of municipal history; some of them, however, throw light on the relations of certain boroughs to their ecclesiastical lords. Many have been destroyed, but probably forty or fifty still remain, chiefly in families of long continuance in Bristol, of which about twenty have passed under my inspection.”¹ At least five of these Bristol chronicles are still in existence, namely, Ricart’s “Kalendar” in the town archives, three calendars in the Bristol Museum, and one in the possession of Mr. F. F. Fox.²

Official compilations.

Ricart’s work is remarkable as being an official compilation; in other words, it was drawn up by him for the town. The mayor, he says, “hath com-maunded me, Robert Ricart . . . Toune Clerk of the saide worshipfull towne, for to devise, ordeigne, and make this present boke for a remembratif evir hereaftir, to be called and named the Maire of Bristow is Register, or ellis the Maire is Kalendar” (p. 3).³ The “Liber de Antiquis Legibus”⁴ seems likewise to have been an official compilation, and the Black Book of Plymouth contains a similar chronicle compiled by town clerks of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.⁵ Rattenbury’s “Journal,” written in the ² Hudd, Two Bristol Calendars (No. 1182), 105-7. Mr. Fox’s calendar extends from 1216 to 1814; the three in the Bristol Museum begin early in the thirteenth century, and end in 1608, 1740, and 1774 respectively. Mr. Hudd prints the first of these three and part of Mr. Fox’s. The historical notices in all of them are few and meagre.

³ Ricart’s record of the mayoralties, which is found mainly in pt. iii. of his “Kalendar,” was continued by his successors, to 1698, in the same MS.

Com.*, ix. 277-8. The historical notices, which commence early in the sixteenth century and are in the handwriting of Mary Tudor’s time, are valueless when they relate to national history, but are of some importance when they refer to local matters.

seventeenth century by the town clerks, John Rattenbury and Thomas Austin, and preserved in the archives of Okehampton, is a record of the mayoralties of that borough.¹ Bacon's "Annals of Ipswich"² was also the official work of a town clerk of the seventeenth century, but its contents, though arranged under the names of the municipal magistrates, consist mainly of abstracts of town records.³

§ 4. General Histories of Boroughs.

The oldest general history of English boroughs is Brady. Brady's Treatise.¹ Brady was regius professor of physic at Cambridge, keeper of the records in the

INTRODUCTION.

Trotter, the household physician of Charles II. and James II., and a member of Parliament in 1681 and 1685. His treatise on municipal history has had a greater influence than any other in modifying public opinion, and in diffusing erroneous views concerning the development of towns. To any one who probes beneath the surface of this book, it is plain that the author wrote in a partisan spirit to uphold the royal prerogative, especially to justify the recent measures of the crown against municipal corporations. Charles II. and James II. had nullified the charters of many towns, and had remodeled their constitution to suit the interests of the crown. The town councils, or select aristocratic bodies, were filled with non-resident burgesses, who controlled the election of the parliamentary representatives of burroughs. Brady strives to show that municipalities originated in grants of the crown for the benefit of trade; that all their privileges and authority came from the bounty of English kings; that ever since their foundation burroughs had select bodies with non-resident members, in which was exercised exclusive control of municipal government. Hence the king, their creator, had the right to nominate these civic governing bodies to suit his inclination and interests. Thus Brady's object was to influence public opinion on one of the most momentous questions of the day, and he succeeded. His specious arguments helped to give a legal title to the existence of select bodies. They now began to prevail more than ever before against the burgesses at large in contested elections of members of Parliament.¹ There can be little doubt that Brady wilfully perverted the truth to countenance the pretensions of his royal patrons and to promote their cause.

Madox's *Firma Burgi*¹ is the work of a painstaking, Madox. truth-loving scholar. In his Preface he makes a statement which is still pertinent at the present day. "Whoso desireth," he says, "to discourse in a proper manner concerning Corporated Towns and Communities, must take in a great variety of matter, and should be allowed a great deal of Time and Preparation. The subject is extensive and difficult. In England much hath been said by Writers to Puzzle and entangle, little to Clear it. Insomuch that when I first entered upon discussing onely One part or branch of it, namely the Theme of this Essay, I found myself encompassed with Doubts." Madox throws much light upon the nature of the fee-farm rents, payable by the boroughs to the king or other lord, and upon the obscure subject of municipal incorporation. The solution of many other problems of town history is incidently aided by his copious extracts from the public records. In fact, his book is a valuable storehouse of material illustrating this subject, rather than a comprehensive survey of the history of municipal institutions. One can also learn from Madox the value of dry records, the love of historical truth, and abstinence from hypothesis or hasty generalization. He tells us that "writing of History is in some sort a Religious act. It imports solemnity and sacredness; and ought to be undertaken with purity and rectitude of mind."²

The work of Merewether and Stephens³ is the most Merewether and Stephens. elaborate of all treatises on English municipal history, and is commonly regarded as the best authority on the subject. The object of the authors in writing this book was eminently practical. They wished to influence public opinion in favor of municipal reform; they fervently desired to undermine that huge accretion of abuses to the growth of which Brady's pen had contributed.

Contents of

The book begins with a long Introduction, in which the authors give an abstract of the results of their investigations; these results are embodied in eleven propositions, whose general drift is to show that the bad features of borough government were abnormal and modern, and that the only way to remedy these evils was to restore the ancient municipal system. The body of the book, consisting of about 2400 large octavo pages, is filled with extracts from the Statute Rolls, Parliament Rolls, town charters, and other sources relating to boroughs. The arrangement is mainly chronological, the material being grouped under the names of successive monarchs of England. The result is a huge mass of undigested material. There is no systematic or comprehensive treatment of the nature and growth of municipal institutions, nothing to connect the myriad of details save the frequent and wearisome reiteration of the eleven propositions enunciated in the Introduction. The investigations of Merewether and Stephens are, in fact, circumscribed by these propositions, which were framed for the special purpose of promoting municipal reform. For example, though scores of pages are devoted to Domesday Book, no attempt is made to solve the question of prime importance to the student of history, namely, What change in the general condition and constitution of boroughs was wrought by the Norman Conquest? Domesday is interpreted not from the standpoint of the true historian, but from the standpoint of the practical reformer who has certain preconceived propositions to demonstrate.

Its value.

As regards the propositions themselves, most of them are untenable. For example, the statement, so often repeated by the authors, that boroughs throughout Great Britain were essentially alike in the Middle Ages, is certainly erroneous. Any one who carefully studies the subject must perceive that there is a great divergence between Scotland and England in this respect. Municipal development in Scotland resembles that of the continent more than that of England in many important features, for example, in the federative union of Scotch towns, in their more autonomous position relative to the crown, and in the bitter struggle between their crafts and the merchant gild.¹ Even in England boroughs were not cast in one mould, as Merewether and Stephens would have us believe: on the contrary, there was great diversity in local institutions and customs. Therefore it is difficult and dangerous to generalize concerning the municipal constitution of England or Great Britain. Even more stress is laid in their book upon the proposition that municipal incorporation was not introduced until the reign of Henry VI. (A. D. 1440). Their object was to ascribe its origin to as recent a period as possible, because most of the evils of borough government were considered to be the outcome of the idea of incorporation; if this idea was modern, then the abuses must also be modern. In reality, Merewether and Stephens prove only that the formula of municipal incorporation, the words employed in the charters incorporating towns, underwent a change in Henry VI.'s time. The thing itself certainly existed as early as the reign of Edward I.² Merewether and Stephens, in discussing this and other important topics, expend all their energy upon concomitants. It is far more essential to ascertain how the technical idea of incorporation originated, what potent affinities gradually drew the burgesses together into a single personality, and what municipal incorporation really signified after it came into existence, than to fix the date of the first charter of incorporation. In short, the materials in this book have not passed through the alembic of a thoroughly critical, historical mind, bent upon finding the truth in all its varied phases, but have been thrown together mechanically, to illuminate only so much of the truth as is contained in eleven practical propositions, the most important of which are untenable. To uphold their views, Mere-wether and Stephens do not hesitate to resort to sophistry and forensic quibbles. In their book their real vocation is clearly reflected: they are practical lawyers pleading a cause. "Antiquarian research," they exclaim in their Introduction, "for the mere purpose of curiosity may have little claim to general attention; but some advantage will be derived from recalling past events, if the improvement of our present condition be the practical object of the inquiry." This is a most laudable sentiment, but it is liable to abuse; "antiquarian research for the mere purpose of curiosity" is better than research which to reform the present deforms the past.

Thompson.

Thompson's *Essay on English Municipal History*¹ is an unpretentious little book, consisting mainly of brief sketches of the history of St. Albans, Leicester, Preston, Norwich, and Yarmouth. These are separate essays between which there is not much coherence. Of the very few broad generalizations which the author ventures to make, the most important relates to the gild merchant. Misled doubtless by the abnormal prominence of this institution at Leicester, Thompson ascribes to it a significance which it did not possess. He asserts that, anterior to the reign of Elizabeth, "the governing body in every leading mediæval borough was called the Guild"; and, "to think of a civic community without its Guild would, in truth, be to think of the human body without the vital principle sustaining its activity and progress." His views on this subject have been refuted in recent years.¹ The gild merchant looms up more prominently than any other municipal institution of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries; but Thompson and Brady both exaggerate its influence upon the burghal constitution, while Merewether and Stephens, going to the other extreme, underestimate its importance.

Of the four works whose value we have briefly estimated, two (Brady and Merewether-Stephens) are warped by partisan feeling; the other two (Madox and Thompson) are written in an impartial spirit, but are mere fragments of a general history of municipalities. The treatises of Brady and Thompson are now of little value; while those of Madox and Merewether-Stephens still contain much crude material that can be turned to account. All of these authors, except Thompson, have devoted their attention mainly to the relations between the boroughs and the crown, and have neglected the constitution or internal organization of boroughs. Not one of them made much use of the most important and most authentic source of local history, namely, the documents in the town archives. In short, not one of them gives a comprehensive account of the history of boroughs; such a treatise remains to be written. A book of this sort is much needed. Certain cardinal features of the medieval borough, such as the firma burgi, the judithese writers.

ciary, and the governing body, still need illumination; the influence of the dissolution of gilds and monasteries upon the municipal constitution, the causes and results of the quo warranto proceedings of the seventeenth century, and the political significance of the rotten borough system in modern times, have not yet been properly investigated; and many good historical scholars have never even heard of the Convention of Royal Burghs of Scotland. Whatever may be said of the Middle Ages,¹ the modern period of borough history is certainly not lacking in political interest.²

§ 5. Histories of Particular Boroughs.

Their value and contents.

The historian who, at the present day, undertakes to deal with any general phase of English municipal development, will at the outset have to lament the absence of good histories of particular boroughs.³ The average town history in England is a farrago of heterogeneous odds and ends thrown together at hazard, no scholarly work being displayed either in the selection of the material or in its elaboration. The bulk of the book comprises verbose antiquarian disquisitions on such subjects as the age of the town, the etymology of its name, and architectural remains, gossip or anecdotes concerning local worthies,⁴ long

² Some estimate of the works of such writers as Hegel, Mrs. Green, Gneist, Stubbs, Maitland, and Ashley is given in the text of this Bibliography.

³ "In England we do not possess one single complete and detailed monograph on town life:" Stubbs, Lectures on Mediæval and Modern History (1886), 64.

accounts of royal visits to the town, genealogies that are often inaccurate, a careful verbatim transcript of epitaphs in the local churchyards, and, in some cases, a chapter on the fauna or geology of the region. Though many town histories rise far above this level and contain much valuable material, it is difficult to find any which can be called model works of their kind.

The mania for copying sepulchral inscriptions is <sup>is Sepulchralia and gene-</sup> not so prevalent as it used to be. But in a history of ^{alogy.}

Croydon, published as recently as 1883,¹ the author attempts to cheer the reader by stating in his Preface, that he has not, like other less scholarly local historians, contented himself with copying laudatory epitaphs of the "more influential inhabitants," but that he has gone to the churchyard and copied all the inscriptions. Accordingly this veracious historian devotes 196 pages of his book to sepulchralia, while 56 pages suffice for all remaining topics. Again, some local writers sacrifice everything to inordinate love of genealogy. In Abram's edition of the gild rolls of Preston, published in 1884,² he gives in full all the lists of members, but omits the laws made by the gild, because the latter are of no interest to him, and, as he states, of no use to genealogists. To a real student of history, this is the play of Hamlet with the Prince of Denmark left out.

Town histories of England are also frequently marred by an excessive antiquarian spirit, the fantastic play of the imagination in connection with the remote past (what Tacitus calls licentia vetustatis), intermingled with intense local pride. Often an energetic attempt is made to trace the history of the borough back to Roman times, to show that it is identical with Calleva, Mediolanum, or some other lost Roman city. A few Roman coins, urns, pots, fibulæ, or other vestiges of antiquity, turned up by the spade, often form sufficient data for a long disquisition on the borough's ancient greatness. Madox, in one of his manuscripts in the British Museum, calls this "the Roman dance." He says that one of the first to lead it was Camden.¹ In another part of this manuscript Madox observes that "when men would fain say some splendid thing of a burgh and can find nothing to say, then they will say that it is a very ancient burrough."² This characteristic of local historians is visible as far back as the twelfth century, when Fitz-Stephen,³ in describing London, assures us that, according to authentic chronicles, this city was much older than Rome. That "the Roman dance" is still in vogue is demonstrated by the long disquisitions on Roman times in such recent works as Jarman's Bridgwater, Tomlinson's Doncaster, and Hedges's Wallingford.⁴

Neglect of medieval history.

The opening chapters of most town histories consist of vague conjectures concerning the antiquity of the borough, together with a heavy padding of generalities concerning the Celts, Romans, and Anglo-Saxons. Then the writers plunge abruptly into the fifteenth, sixteenth, or seventeenth century. The town history is thus, in reality, often left a complete blank down to the end of the Middle Ages. For example, Jarman's Bridgwater, which is somewhat better than the average local history, begins with various vague remarks concerning the Celts, Roman coins, Cæsar's invasion, the Anglo-Saxons and Danes (including the story of Alfred and the cakes), an extract from Domesday concerning Bridgwater, an account of the lord's manor and castle, some allusions to the Black Death, and a few casual references to the burgesses; then the author launches into the history of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

¹ Additional MS. 4529, ff. 141-4. Madox refers particularly to the mania for writing disquisitions on the Roman names of towns.

Antiquarian and genealogical studies, or even the ^{Neglect of town records.} exploration of graveyards and gossip concerning kings and local worthies, are good things in their proper place, but they should not constitute the essence of a town history. The growth of the civic constitution, the development of the municipal government, is usually either meagrely treated or wholly ignored. Too little use is made of the town records, the richest source of local history.¹ In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries more attention was devoted to these records, as the works of writers like Bacon, Boys, Brand, Drake, Manship, Speed, and Swinden testify. When local writers learn to attach as much value to the muniments in the town-hall as to family genealogies, tombstones, and Roman urns, we shall have better town histories, works that will interest not merely the inhabitants of the town, but also students of general constitutional history, works that will furnish data for a good general treatise on the development of municipal government. Moreover, every local history, properly written, will add to our knowledge of the making of the English nation, for every town is an important stone of that great edifice. The town government often anticipated and perhaps even guided the development of the national government.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF BRITISH MUNICIPAL HISTORY.

Part I.—GENERAL AUTHORITIES.

§ 1. BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND CATALOGUES.

- a. General, Nos. 1-16.
- b. County Bibliographies, Nos. 17-43.

The main defect of most of the bibliographies mentioned below is that they do not indicate the historical value of books; they are compiled mainly for book-sellers and book-collectors, not for students of history.

Besides the bibliographies mentioned below, the following works are useful: R. Watt's Bibliotheca Britannica (1824), W. T. Lowndes's Bibliographer's Manual of English Literature, and the printed catalogues of the British Museum Library, the Bodleian Library, the Advocates' Library, the Signet Library, the Trinity College Library (Dublin), the libraries of the London Society of Antiquaries and the London Guildhall, and the free libraries of Birmingham, Liverpool, and Manchester. Special bibliographies of particular towns are mentioned below, in Part II., under the names of the towns.

a. GENERAL.

The most useful work is Anderson's. The sale catalogues included in the list all contain many town histories.

1. *ANDERSON, J. P. The book of British topography: a classified catalogue of the topographical works in the library of the British Museum relating to Great Britain and Ireland. London, 1881. 4°. and 8°.

Many of the older town histories have been acquired by the British Museum Library since this work was compiled. Even if these are added in a future edition of Mr. Anderson's bibliography, it will still exclude many books which are not in the British Museum. His lists of Scotch books are particularly defective.

2. BELL, THOMAS. The Thomas Bell library. The catalogue of 15,000 volumes of scarce and curious printed books, and unique manuscripts, comprised in the unrivalled library collected by the late Thomas Bell between the years 1797 and 1860, which will be sold by auction. . . . Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 1860. 4°.

Rich in works relating to towns, especially those of the northern counties.

2a. BROOKS, R. C. A bibliography of municipal administration and city conditions. Municipal Affairs [published quarterly by the Reform Club of New York], No. 1. New York, 1897. 8°.

Deals mainly with the literature relating to the present administration of municipalities in the United States and Great Britain.

3. COMERFORD, JAMES. Catalogue of the extensive and very valuable library of the late James Comerford. . . . [Sold by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, Nov. 16-30, 1881.] London, 1881. 8°.

4. GOMME, G. L. The literature of local institutions. London, 1886. 8°.

Useful, but very incomplete.

5. [GOUGH, RICHARD.] British topography: or an historical account of what has been done for illustrating the topographical antiquities of Great Britain and Ireland. 2 vols. London, 1780. 4°.

This is a much enlarged edition of his "Anecdotes of British topography," 1768, 1 vol., 4°.

6. —— A catalogue of the books relating to British topography, and Saxon and northern literature, bequeathed to the Bodleian library in the year 1799 by Richard Gough. [Compiled by B. Bandinel.] Oxford, 1814. 4°.

7. GRAY, HENRY. Catalogue of British topography and local and other miscellanea [6,193 titles], offered for sale by Henry Gray. . . . Manchester, 1884. 4°.

8. —— Reference catalogue of British topography and family history. London, 1887. 8°.

9. HARTLEY, L. L. Catalogue of the valuable library of the late Leonard Lawrie Hartley. Part the first. [Sold by Puttick & Simpson, June 1-June 12, 1885.] London, 1885. 8°.

10. HOARE, R. C. A catalogue of books relating to the history and topography of England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland. By R. C. Hoare. Compiled from his library at Stourhead in Wiltshire. [Only twenty-five copies printed.] London, 1815. 8°.

11. — Catalogue of the Hoare library at Stourhead, Co. Wilts. . . . [Compiled by J. B. Nichols.] London, 1840. 8°.

This includes the greater part of the Catalogue of 1815. For British topography, see pp. 93-542.

12. HOTTEN, J. C. A hand-book to the topography and family history of England and Wales: being a descriptive account of twenty thousand most curious and rare books, old tracts. . . . London, [1863.] 8°.

13. [RAWLINSON, RICHARD.] The English topographer: or an historical account . . . of all the pieces that have been written relating to the antiquities, natural history, or topographical description of any part of England. . . . By an impartial hand. London, 1720. 8°.

Wholly superseded by Gough and Upcott.

14. SMITH, J. R. A catalogue of ten thousand tracts and pamphlets, and fifty thousand prints and drawings, illustrating the topography and antiquities of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, collected during the last thirty-five years by the late William Upcott and J. R. Smith. Now offered for sale. . . . London, 1878. 8°.

Contains many tracts relating to town history.

15. *UPCOTT, WILLIAM. A bibliographical account of the principal works relating to English topography. 3 vols. London, 1818. 4°.

This excellent work is still useful, though very incomplete even as regards books published before 1818.

16. WORRALL, JOHN. Bibliotheca topographica Anglicana: or a new and compleat catalogue of all books extant relating to the antiquity, description, and natural history of England. London, 1736. 12°.

A brief list, of little value.

b. COUNTY BIBLIOGRAPHIES.

Notes and Queries, 1896, ix. 361, mentions the following works, to which I have not had access:

Catalogue of books relating to Nottinghamshire, in the library of J. Ward. Nottingham, 1892. 8°.

§ 2. GENERAL PUBLIC RECORDS, ETC.

- a. Reports of Committees, Nos. 44-64.
- b. Statutes, Nos. 65-77.

For public records relating mainly to particular topics and periods, see below, §§ 4-14.

a. REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

44. Reports from committees of the House of Commons which have been printed by order of the House, and are not inserted in the Journals [1715-1802]. 15 vols. [London, 1773-1803.] f°.

See No. 47.

This collection has been continued in the numerous folio volumes which are commonly cited as "Parliamentary Papers." The volumes (about 5500 in all) are numbered continuously under each session. They contain reports of committees, bills, accounts, etc.

Indexes and Catalogues.

All the volumes mentioned below, except No. 56, are Parliamentary Papers. An Index to each session will usually be found in the last volume for the session.

45. Catalogue of papers printed by order of the House of Commons, 1731-1800. [London,] 1807. f°.

46. Catalogue of parliamentary reports, and a breviate of their contents: arranged under heads according to the subjects, 1696-1834. [London,] 1834. f°.

47. General index to the reports from committees of the House of Commons, 1715-1801; forming the series of fifteen volumes of reports. [London,] 1803. f°.

See No. 44.

48. [General] indexes to the subject matters of the reports of the House of Commons, 1801-34. [London,] 1834. f°.

49. General index to the sessional papers, 1801-37. [London,] 1840. f°.

50. General index to the bills, printed by order of the House of Commons, 1801-52. [London,] 1854. f°.

51. General index to the reports of the select committees, printed by order of the House of Commons, 1801-52. [London,] 1854. f°.

52. General index to the accounts and papers, reports of commissioners, estimates, etc., etc., printed by order of the House of Commons, or presented by command, 1801-52. [London,] 1854. f°.

53. General index to the bills, reports, accounts, and other papers, printed by order of the House of Commons, or presented by command, 1852-53 — 1861. [London,] 1862. f°.

54. General index to the bills, reports, estimates, accounts, and papers . . . 1852-53 — 1868-69. [London,] 1870. f°.

55. General index to the bills, reports, estimates, accounts, and papers . . . 1870 — 1878-79. [London,] 1880. f°.

56. Law reports (The). Index to the orders in council, proclamations, royal commissions of inquiry, orders, and notices of government departments; and all other matter published in the London Gazette, from Jan. 1st, 1830, to Dec. 31st, 1883. . . . Together with references to statutes and parliamentary papers connected therewith. Compiled for the incorporated Council of Law Reporting for England and Wales by Alexander Pulling. London, 1885. 8°.

Particular Reports.

Only the more important reports are given below. Many others may be found with the help of the Indexes. A few of the reports relating to particular towns are included in Part II. of this Bibliography. See also Nos. 253, 294-5, 718-9, 768-72.

57. Reports (First and Second) from the select committee, appointed to inquire into the state of the public records of the kingdom, etc. [London, 1800.] f°.

VOL. xv. of the Reports from Committees, 1715-1802: see above, No. 44.

Many records relating to municipal corporations are referred to in table ii. pp. 565-667.

58. Report (General) to the king in council from the honourable board of commissioners on the public records. . . . Record Com. [London,] 1837. f°.

Pp. 428-512 contain reports upon the records of the following towns:

Altringham	*Folkestone	Newcastle-under-Lyme
Andover	Garstang	Newport (Monmouthshire)
Ashburton	Glastonbury	Newton (Lancashire)
Axbridge	Godalming	Oswestry
Banbury	Grampound	Penryn
Basingstoke	Grantham	Plymouth

Dunmow	Maidenhead	Wokingham
*Dunwich	Maldon	Woodstock
Durham	Marazion	Worcester
Falmouth	Monmouth	Wycombe
Farnham	Morpeth	Yarmouth (Isle of Wight)

Most of these reports are very brief; those for the towns marked with an asterisk are more detailed, some of them giving extracts from charters and other records. The report on Southampton is very full.

59. Reports from the select committee on municipal corporations ; with the minutes of evidence taken before them. Parl. Papers, 1833, vol. xiii. [London,] 1833. f°.

This inquiry covers the following towns :

Bath	Denbigh	Hull	Saltash
Berwick	Dover	Monmouth	Usk
Bradninch	Dublin	Newport (Monmouthshire)	Wisbech
Brecon	Gloucester	Northampton	Yarmouth (Great)
Coventry	Grantham	Portsmouth

60. * Report (First) of commissioners appointed to inquire into the municipal corporations in England and Wales [with appendix, pts. i.-v.]. Parl. Papers, 1835, vols. xxiiii.-xxvi. 4 vols. [London,] 1835. f°.

This report deals with 284 towns.

Analytical index : Parl. Papers, 1839, vol. xviii.

Second Report . . . London and Southwark, London companies : Parl. Papers, 1837, vol. xxv.

Reports upon certain boroughs, drawn by T. J. Hogg : Parl. Papers, 1837-8, vol. xxxv.

Mr. Hogg reports on the following boroughs :

Bala	Llanfyllin	Machynlleth	Newtown	Welshpool
Conway	Llanidloes	Montgomery	Pwlheli	Wigan
Criccieth	Macclesfield	Nevin	Stockport

For the reports on Ireland and Scotland, see below, Nos. 718, 772.

These various reports on the boroughs of Great Britain form one of the most important sources for the study of municipal history. They should not be ignored by the historians of particular towns.

61. Report of the commissioners appointed to inquire into municipal corporations not subject to the Municipal Corporations Act [of 1835] (other than the city of London) ; together with minutes of evidence, index, etc. Parl. Papers, 1880, vol. xxxi. [London,] 1880. f°.

This inquiry covers 110 corporations in England and Wales ; the appendix contains special reports concerning 86 of them. On this Report was based the Municipal Corporations Act, 1883, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 18.

§ 3. GENERAL MUNICIPAL HISTORIES.

- a.* Principal Treatises, Nos. 78-80.
- b.* Short Accounts, Nos. 81-94.

a. PRINCIPAL TREATISES.

There is no good general history of English municipalities. Brady is biased and unreliable. The material in Merewether and Stephens is valuable, but many of their general conclusions are untenable. Thompson's little book is readable, but fragmentary. Mrs. Green's Town Life and Madox's Firma Burgi (Nos. 153, 158), though they do not cover the whole range of municipal history, are of considerable general interest.

78. BRADY, ROBERT. An historical treatise of cities and burghs or boroughs. Shewing their original, and whence and from whom they received their liberties, privileges, and immunities; what they were, and what made and constituted a free burgh and free burgesses. As also shewing when they first sent their representatives to Parliament. With a concurrent discourse of most matters and things incident or relating thereto. Second edition. London, 1704. f°.

The body of the work is occupied mainly with extracts from Domesday Book, and with a long discussion of parliamentary writs and returns.

The appendix contains the following Latin charters: King John and Edw. III. to Great Yarmouth; King John to Dunwich (two charters); Hen. II. to Wallingford; Rich. I. to Portsmouth, Winchester, and Lincoln; King John to Andover, Bridgwater, Helston, Lynn, Hartlepool, London, York, and Norwich; Edw. IV. to London, inspecting charters of Hen. I., Hen. II., and Rich. I.; James II. to Windsor. The appendix also gives documents relating to the disputes between Great Yarmouth and Gorleston (Hen. III.—Edw. I.), and several returns of writs.

Brady wrote in a partisan spirit, to justify the measures of Charles II. and James II. against municipal corporations.

1st edition, 1690, f°; new edition, 1777, 8°.

For a detailed account and criticism of this work, see Merewether and Stephens (No. 79), iii. 1900-1938. See also No. 168.

79. *MEREWETHER, H. A., and STEPHENS, A. J. The history of the boroughs and municipal corporations of the United Kingdom, from the earliest to the present time; with an examination of records, charters, and other documents, illustrative of their constitution and powers. 3 vols. London, 1835. 8°.

The most elaborate history of boroughs. Besides an analysis of the Anglo-Saxon Laws, Domesday Book, the Year Books, the Statutes of the Realm, and other important general sources, it contains much valuable material illustrating the history of many particular towns.

80. THOMPSON, JAMES. An essay on English municipal history. London, 1867. 8°.

Ch. i. The Roman-British municipalities.	Chs. xiii.-xiv. On market towns.
Ch. ii. Saxon town institutions.	Ch. xv. Municipal insignia.
Ch. iii. The borough of St. Albans.	Ch. xvi. The French communes.
Chs. iv.-vii. The borough of Leicester.	Ch. xvii. Comparison between French communes and English boroughs.
Ch. viii. The borough of Preston.	Ch. xviii. Practical conclusions.
Ch. ix.-xi. The city of Norwich.
Ch. xii. The borough of Yarmouth.

b. SHORT ACCOUNTS.

The only works of importance under this head are those of Gneist, Hegel, and Stubbs. Gneist's views of municipal development are interesting, but he is inclined to follow Merewether and Stephens too closely. Hegel's work contains one of the most valuable recent contributions to English municipal history in the Middle Ages.

81. CONNELL, ARTHUR. A treatise on the election laws in Scotland; to which is added [pp. 403-536] an historical enquiry concerning the municipal constitution of towns and boroughs. With an appendix. Edinburgh, 1827. 8°.

82. GLASSON, ERNEST. Histoire du droit et des institutions politiques, civiles et judiciaires de l'Angleterre. . . . 6 vols. Paris, 1882-83. 8°.

Boroughs, ii. 164-7, iii. 100-118, iv. 88-92, v. 84-7, vi. 64-84.

83. GNEIST, RUDOLPH. Das heutige englische Verfassungs- und Verwaltungsrecht. 3 pts. Berlin, 1857-63. 8°.

Pt. iii., the Ergänzungsband, bearing the title "Geschichte des Selfgovernment in England," contains Gneist's fullest account of municipal history. This account will also be found in his "Communalverfassung," 2nd edition, 1863, but not in the 3rd edition, 1871.

84. — Selfgovernment, Communalverfassung und Verwaltungsgerichte in England. Dritte Auflage (in einem Bande). Berlin, 1871. 8°.

Municipal history, 311-14, 437-43, 473-5, 673-4, 720-22.

This work has been translated by P. A. Ashworth: "The History of the English Constitution," 2 vols., London, 1886; 2nd edition, 1889.

86. —— Das englische Verwaltungsrecht. . . . Dritte Auflage. 2 vols. Berlin, 1883-84. 8°.

87. *HEGEL, KARL. Städte und Gilden der germanischen Völker im Mittelalter. 2 vols. Leipzig, 1891. 8°.

England, i. 13-120, 441-57.

He proves that the municipal constitution is not derived from the gilds.

88. MEREWETHER, H. A. Report of the case of the borough of West Looe . . . 18th April, 1822; with a preface, notes, and cases, illustrative of the general history of boroughs, and of the law relating to them. London, 1823. 8°.

89. Origin and progress of municipal corporations. Westminster Review, xxii. 408-39. London, 1835. 8°.

90. Penny cyclopædia. 30 vols. London, 1833-58. 4°.

Vol. v. pp. 193-220 contains quite a good account of the boroughs of England and Wales; viii. 48-53, boroughs of Ireland; v. 220-2, burghs of Scotland.

91. PICTON, J. A. Our municipal institutions in their past and future. Liverpool, 1882. 8°.

A lecture, containing a brief sketch of the history of boroughs.

92. PIKE, L. O. A history of crime in England. . . . 2 vols. London, 1873-76. 8°.

See his index, under "Towns."

93. STEPHENS, A. J. The rise and progress of the English constitution: the treatise of J. L. de Lolme. With an historical and legal introduction, and notes, by A. J. Stephens. 2 vols. London, 1838. 8°.

For the history of boroughs, see the introduction, i. 15-18, 26-7, 33-4, 57-65, 138-9, 149-50, 259-60, 274-81, 316-20, 427, 455-8, 479-83. This account is derived from Merewether and Stephens's Municipal Corporations (No. 79), giving all their main facts and arguments without wearisome repetitions.

94. *STUBBS, WILLIAM. The constitutional history of England in its origin and development. 3 vols. Oxford, 1874-78. 8°.

Contains a good general sketch of municipal history to the end of the 15th century: see §§ 44, 131, 165, 211-14, 218, 219, 422, 484.
5th edition, Oxford, 1891-96, 8°.

§ 4. THE ROMAN AND ANGLO-SAXON PERIODS.

The meagre sources for the history of Roman Britain deal mainly with roads and stations, or topographical and military matters; they give very little information concerning municipal government. The most elaborate plea in favor of the continuance of the Roman municipal régime in England after the Anglo-Saxon Conquest will be found in Coote's Romans of Britain; this theory is also maintained by Wright. Their arguments are not convincing, and have been rejected by Freeman, Gomme, Green, Scruton, and Stubbs (Constitutional History, § 44). There are some modern works relating to particular towns in the Roman period, such as H. M. Scarth's Aqua Solis, or Notices of Roman Bath, 1864; C. R. Smith's Illustrations of Roman London, 1859; C. Wellbeloved's Eburacum, or York under the Romans, 1842; Whitaker's Manchester (No. 2368); T. Wright's Uronicum, 1872; see also below, No. 2009. These books deal mainly with topographical, military, and archæological matters. For some account of the sources and modern literature relating to Roman Britain, see K. Elze, Grundriss der Englischen Philologie, Halle, 1887, pp. 101-108; T. Mommsen and J. Marquardt, Manuel des Antiquités Romaines edited by G. Humbert, Paris, 1892, ix. 153-4.

For the Anglo-Saxon period, also, our sources of information are meagre. The principal sources are the Anglo-Saxon laws (Nos. 95-96) and Domesday Book (No. 123): supplemented by a few stray passages in the Anglo-Saxon Chronicles; Kemble's Codex Diplomaticus, 6 vols., 1839-46; Birch's Cartularium, 3 vols., 1885-93; and Thorpe's Diplomatarium, 1865. Kemble, in his Saxons in England, gives a detailed account of the history of towns, but it is vague and based largely on continental analogies of a later period; there is a good short account in Hegel's Städte (No. 87), and in Stubbs's Constitutional History (No. 94), § 44. Maitland's essay (No. 110) is valuable and suggestive.

95. Ancient laws and institutes of England. . . . [Edited by Benjamin Thorpe.] Record Com. [London,] 1840. f°.

See No. 96.

- 96. —— Die Gesetze der Angelsachsen . . . herausgegeben von Reinhold Schmid. Zweite Auflage. Leipzig, 1858. 8°.

1st edition, 1832. The second edition should be used; it is better than Thorpe's. A new edition of the Anglo-Saxon laws is being prepared by Dr. F. Liebermann; it will doubtless supersede all others.

The principal passages relating to boroughs are indicated in Thorpe's index, under the words "Burh," "Gemot," "London," and "Port," and on pp. 541-2 of Schmid. For guilds, see Schmid, 588.

This is an expansion of No. 97.

Roman and Anglo-Saxon municipalities and guilds, 342-413.

A learned plea in favor of the continuance of Roman civilization in England; the author's arguments are ingenious and plausible, but he relies too much on general analogies. See Freeman's criticism of A Neglected Fact, in Macmillan's Magazine, July, 1870.

§ 5. THE LATER MIDDLE AGES: 1066-1500.

a. Public Records, etc., Nos. 118-148.

b. Modern Writers, Nos. 149-169.

The principal general sources for the study of this period are Domesday Book and the publications of the Record Commission. A good account of these public records will be found in S. R. Scargill-Bird's Guide to the Documents in the Public Record Office (2nd edition, 1896), and in C. P. Cooper's Account of the most important Public Records (2 vols., 1832). The archives of particular towns are also of great value; some of the local records of the thirteenth century have been preserved, but in most towns the oldest muniments are of later date. The printed collections are mentioned in Part II. of this Bibliography, and many extracts are given in the Reports of the Historical MSS. Commission (No. 62). The best modern authorities besides Hegel and Stubbs (Nos. 87, 94) are Mrs. Green, and Pollock and Maitland (Nos. 153, 164).

- 122. Collections for a history of Staffordshire. Edited by the William Salt Archaeological Society. Vols. i.–xvii. Birmingham, 1880 [1881]–96. 8°.

Contains copious extracts from the early Pipe Rolls, Pedes Finium, Plea Rolls, Hundred Rolls, and other public records.

- 123. * Domesday Book, seu liber censualis Wilhelmi primi. . . [Edited by Abraham Farley.] 4 vols. [London, 1783]–1816. f°.

Vol. iii., Indices, and vol. iv., Additamenta, were edited by H. Ellis, Record Com., 1816. Vol. iii. also contains Ellis's General Introduction to Domesday Book, a new edition of which appeared in 1833, Record Com., 2 vols, 8° (cities and boroughs, i. 190–210, ii. 417–510).

W. de Gray Birch's Domesday Book (London, 1887), ch. x., contains a popular account of boroughs. For better accounts, see the works of Maitland and Round (Nos. 160, 166).

124. Fœdera, conventiones, literæ, et cujuscunque generis acta publica, inter reges Angliæ et alias quosvis imperatores, reges, pontifices, principes, vel communitates . . . [1101–1654.] Accurante Thoma Rymer. [Vols. xvi.–xx. by Robert Sanderson.] 20 vols. Londini, 1704–35. f°.

Vols. i.–xvii., published in 1704–17, are often called the first edition. Second edition, by George Holmes, 17 vols., London, 1727–29; another edition, 10 vols., The Hague, 1739–45; new edition [1666–1833], by Adam Clarke, F. Holbrooke, and J. Caley, 4 vols. in 7 pts., Record Com., 1816–69 (vol. iv. printed in 1830, published in 1869). All the editions are fully described in T. D. Hardy's Syllabus of Documents in Rymer's Fœdera (Rolls Series, 3 vols., 1869–85), which also contains a good subject index of the various editions. The Record Commissioners' edition is much more valuable than the other editions for the study of the internal affairs of boroughs; it contains many municipal charters, the most important of which were granted to the following towns:

- Beverley, Hen. I., Hen. II., i. 10, 40.
- Cambridge, 8 John, 10 Edw. III., i. 94, ii. 934 (bis).
- Cinque Ports, 6 Edw. I., 38 Edw. III., i. 558, iii. 743.
- Dublin, 3 Rich. I., 2, 17 John, 13 Edw. I., i. 55, 82, 135, 661.
- Kingston-upon-Thames, 10 John, i. 102.
- Lincoln, Hen. II., Rich. I., i. 40, 52.
- London, Hen. I., 1 John, 38 Edw. III., i. 11, 76, iii. 734.
- Malmesbury, 5 Rich. II. and Athelstan, iv. 135.
- Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 14 John, 18 Hen. III., i. 108, 213.
- Norwich, 5 Rich. I., i. 63.
- Nottingham, Hen. II., i. 41.
- Oxford, 39 Hen. III., 29 Edw. III., i. 323, iii. 311.
- Portsmouth, 5 Rich. I., i. 63.
- Rye, 2 Rich. I., i. 53.
- Salisbury, 1 Rich. II., iv. 41.
- Wallingford, 51 Hen. III. and Hen. II., i. 471.
- Winchelsea, 2 Rich. I., i. 53.
- Winchester, 1 Rich. I., i. 50.
- Yarmouth (Great), 9 John, i. 100.

There are also many other documents relating to the political and commercial history of boroughs. See Hardy's Syllabus, iii., Index.

125. JONES, EDWARD. Index to records called the originalia and memoranda on the lord treasurer's remembrancer's side of the exchequer . . . containing all the grants of abbey lands, and other property, granted by the crown, from the beginning of the reign of Henry VIII. to the end of Queen Anne. Also inrollments of charters, grants, and patents to several religious houses, and to cities, boroughs, towns, companies, colleges, and other public institutions from the earliest period. . . . 2 vols. London, 1793-95. f°.

126. Liber Niger Scaccarii. Edited by Thomas Hearne. Editio altera. 2 vols. London, 1771. 8°.

The Liber Niger is of little value for municipal history, but in this edition Hearne prints the following documents:

Exeter, inspeximus, 28 Edw. I., 812-15.

Kingston-upon-Thames, charters of Edw. IV., Eliz., and Charles I., 397-401.

New Malton, privileges claimed by the burgesses (1596), 796-805.

Oxford, charters of John and Hen. III., 819-20.

Wallingford, charter of Hen. II., 816-19.

127. Materials for a history of the reign of Henry VII. From original documents preserved in the Public Record Office. Edited by Rev. William Campbell. Rolls Series. 2 vols. London, 1873-77. 8°.

The following references are to some of the more important documents relating to boroughs:

Corfe Castle, ii. 256

Pontefract, ii. 335, 419

Hereford, i. 312-13

Waterford, ii. 149-50, 306-7

Lancaster, i. 545-6

Yarmouth (Great), i. 326-7, 330

Leicester, ii. 244-5, 369-70, 456-7

York, i. 462, ii. 552-3

128. Nonarum inquisitiones in curia scaccarii, temp. Regis Edwardi III. [Edited by George Vanderzee.] Record Com. [London,] 1807. f°.

Contains lists of burgesses in various towns, with the amount of tax that each burgess paid.

129. [Pipe Rolls.] The great roll of the pipe for the fifth [-20th] year of the reign of King Henry the Second, A. D. 1158 [-1174]. Pipe Roll Society. 16 vols. London, 1884-96. 8°.

The following rolls were printed by the Record Commission:

Magnum rotulum scaccarii, 31 Hen. I., edited by J. Hunter, 1833.

The great roll of the pipe, 1 Rich. I., by J. Hunter, 1844.

The great rolls of the pipe, 2, 3, 4 Hen. II., by J. Hunter, 1844.

Rotulus cancellarii, vel antigraphum magni rotuli pipæ, 3 John, 1833.

There are also many extracts from the Pipe Rolls in Madox's works (Nos. 158, 159).

130. *Rotuli chartarum in Turri Londinensi asservati. Accurante T. D. Hardy. Vol. i. 1199-1216. Record Com. [London,] 1837. f°.

Contains the following borough charters :

- b. Charles II. and James II.: Seizure of Charters, Nos. 178-187.*
- c. Law Reports, Nos. 188-201.*

The principal sources for the study of this period are the Journals of the House of Commons (No. 287), the Law Reports (§ 6c), the Reports of the Historical MSS. Commission and of the Municipal Corporations Commission (Nos. 60, 62), and the records of particular towns, mentioned below in Part II. There is no good general history of municipal development in this period. The best account is given by Merewether and Stephens (No. 79); they are more trustworthy here than in the earlier portions of their treatise.

§ 7. NINETEENTH CENTURY: MUNICIPAL REFORM.

- a. General, Nos. 2012-232.
- b. Municipal Reform, 1835, Nos. 233-259.
- c. The Act of 1882, Nos. 260-266.
- d. The Act of 1888: County Councils, Nos. 267-284a.

The most valuable parliamentary papers for the study of this period are the various Reports on Municipal Corporations (Nos. 59-61). The important legislative changes of 1835, 1882, and 1888 are recorded in the Public General Statutes (Nos. 68-69). The First Schedule of the Act of 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50) enumerates all the older acts relating to municipal corporations; see also Index of Statutes (No. 75), under "Boroughs." The discussions in Parliament concerning these legislative changes will be found in Hansard's Debates, and more briefly in the Annual Register.

There is no good general history of municipal development during this century. May and Walpole (Nos. 246, 258) give a good short account of the reform of 1835. Vine (No. 228) gives a detailed but dry survey of municipal affairs for the years 1835-79. Some of the works mentioned in § 8 f also throw much light on the government of boroughs in the first decades of this century. One of the best accounts of the present condition of municipal institutions is furnished by Shaw (No. 225). The French and Italian books mentioned in § 7 a contain some interesting comparisons between English and continental municipalities.

Many works dealing with the details of municipal administration are mentioned in No. 2a.

§ 8. PARLIAMENTARY HISTORY.

- a.* Records, and Reports of Committees, Nos. 285-295.
- b.* General Histories, etc., Nos. 296-315*a.*
- c.* Particular Counties, Nos. 316-328.
- d.* History and Law of Elections, Nos. 329-344.
- e.* Election Cases, Nos. 345-357.
- f.* Parliamentary Reform, Nos. 358-527.

Though the following list contains all the most important works relating to general parliamentary history, it is to be regarded as a bibliography of only one phase of the subject, namely, the representative history of boroughs. Many of the works enumerated are valuable for the study of the internal municipal development, with which indeed the representative history is closely connected. This is notably true of the cases of controverted elections discussed in the Journals of the House of Commons (No. 287) and in the collections of reports (§ 8 e.)

For minor additions to the lists given below, see the old printed catalogue of the British Museum Library, vol. v. (London, 1817), under the word "Parliament"; Lowndes, Bibliographer's Manual (1861), 1781-86; R. Sims, Manual for the Genealogist, Topographer, etc. (1856), 148-58; Parry, Parliaments and Councils (No. 306), Preface, 8-29; R. Watt, Bibliotheca Britannica (1824), under the words "Parliament" and "Reform."

For Ireland and Scotland, see §§ 12, 13.

a. RECORDS, AND REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The chief sources for the study of the medieval representation of boroughs are the Parliamentary Writs (Nos. 292, 293), the Rolls of Parliament (No. 134), and the Peers' Reports (No. 295). For modern times the principal sources are the Journals of the House of Commons (No. 287), the Statutes (§ 2 b), and Hansard's Debates.

285. * HANSARD, T. C. Parliamentary debates, from the year 1803 to the present time: forming a continuation of the work entitled "The parliamentary history of England from the earliest period to the year 1803," [by William Cobbett. See No. 297.] 41 vols. London, 1812-20. 8°.

New series. 25 vols. London, 1820-30. 8°.

Third series. 356 vols. London, 1831-91. 8°.

Fourth series. 40 vols. London, 1892-96. 8°.

A General Index to the 1st and 2nd series, edited by John Philippart, appeared in 1834. Since 1830 there is an index for each session.

A briefer account of the debates will be found in the Annual Register, published since 1758.

For earlier collections of debates, see Lowndes, Bibliographer's Manual (1861), 1781.

286. Indexes to reports of commissioners, 1832-1854. (Parliamentary representation.) Parl. Papers, 1854, vol. lxiv. [London,] 1854. f°.

287. * Journals of the House of Commons [1547-1895.] 150 vols. [London, n. d.—1895.] f°.

A reprint of the old Journals was begun in 1803.

The following General Indexes have been printed:

1547-1714, vols. i.-xvii., by T. Vardon and T. E. May, 1852.

1714-1774, vols. xviii.-xxxiv., by E. Moore, 1778.

1774-1790, vols. xxxv.-xlv., by S. Dunn, 1796.

1790-1801, vols. xlvi.-lv., by S. Dunn, 1803.

1801-1820, vols. lvi.-lxxv., by M. C. Burney, 1825.

1820-1837, vols. lxxv.-xcii., by T. Vardon, 1839.

1837-1852, vols. xciii.-cvii., by T. Vardon, 1857.

The early volumes of the Journals throw much light upon general municipal history; they contain valuable material concerning most of the boroughs of England.

288. Journals of the House of Lords [1509-1895.] 127 vols. [London, n. d.—1895.] f°.

Calendar of the Journals, 1509-1826, 2 vols., [1810.]

Indexes to vols. i.-lxiv., 1509-1833, 5 vols., 1817-55.

289. Members of Parliament. [Return of the name of every member of the lower house of the Parliaments of England, Scotland, and Ireland, with name of constituency represented, and date of return, from 1213 to 1874.] Parl. Papers, 1878, vol. lxii., pts. i.-iii. 3 vols. [London,] 1878. f°.

Valuable.

Return of members of Parliament . . . of session 1878. Parl. Papers, 1890-91, vol. lxii. [London,] 1891. f°.

Contains a list of M. P.'s for 1880-85, and an index of names from 1705 to 1885.

291. — BEAN, W. W. The parliamentary returns of members of the House of Commons, from 1213 to 1874. . . . Notices of various errors and omissions found in the above-named work, in several Parliaments from 1603 to 1830. London, [1883.] 8°.

292. * Parliamentary writs (The) and writs of military summons . . . relating to the suit and service due and performed to the king's high court of Parliament and the councils of the realm, or affording evidence of attendance given at Parliaments and councils. Collected and edited by Francis Palgrave. Record Com. 2 vols. [Vol. ii. in three divisions.] London, 1827-34. f°.

The most elaborate source for the study of parliamentary history in the reigns of Edw. I. and Edw. II.

293. * PRYNNE, WILLIAM. A brief register, kalendar, and survey of the several kinds [or] forms of all parliamentary writs [to 1483]. . . . 4 vols. London, 1659-64. 4°.

The third part has the separate title, "Brevia Parliamentaria Rediviva," London, 1662.

Vols. iii.-iv. contain many writs of expenses of burgesses, returns of boroughs (Edw. I.—Edw. IV.), etc.

294. Report from the select committee on parliamentary and municipal elections. Parl. Papers, 1868-69, vol. viii.; 1870, vol. vi.; 1876, vol. xii. [London,] 1869-76. f°.

295. * Reports from the lords' committees appointed to search the Journals of the House, rolls of Parliament, and other records and documents, for all matters touching the dignity of a peer of the realm. . . . 4 vols. London, 1820-25. f°.

Vol. i. First Report: The general history of legislative assemblies in England, etc.

Vols. ii.-iii. Appendix: "Summoniores temp. Johannis—Edw. IV."

Vol. iv. Second, Third, and Fourth Reports.

Reprinted in Parl. Papers, 1826, vols. vi.-ix.

The First Report and the Summons will also be found in Journals of the House of Lords, 5 Geo. IV., 470-1104.

One of the most valuable sources of parliamentary history.

b. GENERAL HISTORIES, ETC.

Gneist's English Parliament (No. 299) and the Peers' Reports (No. 295) contain the best general accounts of parliamentary history. Smith's work (No. 309) is fuller than Gneist's, but much of his material is borrowed from Gneist, Stubbs, and other writers. The most useful books for the study of the medieval period are the Peers' Reports, Stubbs's Constitutional History (No. 94), and Riess's Wahlrecht (No. 341). The treatise of Merewether and Stephens (No. 79) contains much material, especially for the modern period. The works of Oldfield and Willis (Nos. 304, 315, 315a) are in large part antiquated.

296. BEATSON, ROBERT. A chronological register of both houses of the British Parliament, from the union in 1708 to the third Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, in 1807. 3 vols. London, 1807. 8°.

For Parliament in the time of Henry III., see his Tracts, ii. 239-326.

304. OLDFIELD, T. H. B. The representative history of Great Britain and Ireland : being a history of the House of Commons, and of the counties, cities, and boroughs of the United Kingdom, from the earliest period. 6 vols. London, 1816. 8°.

His first work on this subject was published anonymously under the title, "An entire and complete history of the boroughs of Great Britain," 3 vols., 1792; 2nd edition [abridged], 2 vols., 1794. His "History of the original constitution of Parliaments," 1797, is a sort of abridgment of the preceding treatise. Both works were reprinted under the title, "A complete history of the boroughs of Great Britain," 3 vols., 1805. "The representative history" of 1816 is an enlarged edition of the work published in 1792. Vols. i.-ii. contain a general history of the House of Commons; vols. iii.-vi. give a brief sketch of the municipal and representative history of each borough; the appendix of vol. vi. contains a table of parliamentary patronage, etc.

305. Parliamentary or constitutional history (The) of England : being a faithful account of all the most remarkable transactions in Parliament, from the earliest times . . . [to Dec. 29, 1660.] Collected . . . by several hands. 24 vols. London, 1751-61. 8°.

2nd edition, 24 vols., London, 1761-63. 8°.

This was superseded by Cobbett's work (No. 297).

The chapter on "Voters for cities and boroughs" cites many cases.

1st edition, 1820; 16th edition, 1892.

e. ELECTION CASES.

The collections of cases are of considerable value for the study, not merely of parliamentary representation, but of municipal history in general. The most useful are those of Carew, Douglas, Fraser, Glanville, Luders, and Peckwell. After the reforms of 1832 and 1835, the collections are of less value, and therefore most of them have been omitted. The tables of contents appended to the titles given below include only the more important cases.

The Parliamentary Papers contain many reports of committees appointed to consider cases of controverted elections: e. g. 1806-7, vol. iv.; 1819, vol. iv.; 1826-27, vol. iv. For many other cases, especially in the years 1801-34, see Catalogue of Parl. Papers, 1696-1834 (No. 46), pp. 34-7. Some of the most valuable of these cases are mentioned below, in Part II., under the names of particular towns.

See § 8 d.

345. BOHUN, WILLIAM. A collection of debates, reports, orders, and resolutions of the House of Commons, touching the right of electing members to serve in Parliament, for the several counties, cities, boroughs, and towns corporate in England and Wales; together with several ancient charters, and extracts out of Domesday-Book, and other records relating to the said right. London, [1702.] f°.

Most of the cases reported fall within the years 1674-1700.

f. PARLIAMENTARY REFORM.

The question of parliamentary reform was first raised in practical shape by Mr. Pitt, who in 1782 introduced resolutions in favor of reform; but no definite action was taken until 1832. In each of the years 1832, 1854, 1859, 1860, 1864, 1865, and 1866 reform bills were introduced, but were ultimately withdrawn or defeated. The important acts of 1832, 1867, and 1884-5 will be found in the Statutes (No. 68); the discussions in Parliament, in Hansard's Debates, and more briefly in the Annual Register (especially for the years 1831-2, 1866-7, 1884-5). The best general histories of the various reforms are those of Heaton and Murdoch. For a list of all the acts relating to parliamentary representation, see the Index of Statutes (No. 75), under "House of Commons."

No attempt is made to give an exhaustive list of all the books and pamphlets dealing with parliamentary reform; only those works are named which throw light on the parliamentary representation of boroughs.

For Ireland and Scotland, see below, §§ 12-13. For the periodical literature, see Poole's Index (1882), 973, and his First Supplement (1888), 330, 370.

§ 9. GILDS.

Many documents relating to religious and merchant gilds are printed by Smith (No. 537) and by Gross (No. 541). A general collection of the ordinances of craft gilds is needed; abundant material for such a work is accessible in the Public Record Office and in the town archives. Many ordinances of the crafts are printed in the histories of particular towns. (See below, Index, under "Gilds.")

No good comprehensive history of gilds has as yet been written. Brentano's sketch is brilliant, but unreliable. Ashley, Cunningham, and Seligman give good short accounts. The most detailed account of the gild merchant has been written by Gross; and the best account of the craft gilds, by Ashley. Hegel's work is valuable, especially for the relations of the gilds to the origin of municipal government; Von Ochenkowsky throws much light upon the relations of the crafts to the town authorities.

§ 10. COUNTY HISTORIES.

- a.* General, Nos. 568-570.
- b.* Particular Counties, Nos. 571-676.

Few of the county histories deal satisfactorily with the boroughs; but in some cases they contain the only account of the history of a town that has been written, and in other cases documentary material not printed elsewhere. The tables of contents given below under the various titles include only those boroughs the municipal history of which is considered in the county histories.

The older general topographical works, like Leland's Itinerary and Collectanea, Camden's Britannia, and Nichols's Bibliotheca Topographica, devote little attention to municipal history. Such portions of these works as fall within the scope of this Bibliography are included in Part II. under the names of particular towns.

Some of the publications of the county societies are of considerable value, and much use has been made of them below in Part II.

For works relating to the parliamentary history of counties, see § 8 c. For county histories of Ireland and Scotland, see §§ 12-13. For county bibliographies, see § 1.

a. GENERAL.

568. Beauties (The) of England and Wales: or original delineations, topographical, historical, and descriptive, of each county. Embellished with engravings. By E. W. Brayley and J. Britton [and others.] 19 vols. London, 1801-18. 8°.

569. [Cox, THOMAS.] Magna Britannia et Hibernia, antiqua et nova: or a new survey of Great Britain, wherein to the topographical account given by Mr. Cambden, and the late editors of the Britannia, is added a more large history, not only of the cities, boroughs, towns, and parishes mentioned by them, but also of many other places of note. . . . Collected and composed by an impartial hand. 6 vols. London, 1720-31. 4°.

Only the English counties were published. Though each borough is very briefly considered, the municipal history receives more attention than in most of the older general topographical works.

- 570. LYSONS, DANIEL and SAMUEL. Magna Britannia: being a concise topographical account of the several counties of Great Britain. 6 vols., 8 pts. London, 1806-22. 4°.

Comprehends only the counties of Bedfordshire, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Cheshire, Cornwall, Cumberland, Derby, and Devon. The municipal history of the boroughs is briefly considered.

Vol. i. was re-issued in 1813.

§ 11. THE CINQUE PORTS.

a. Records, Nos. 677-685.

b. General Histories, etc., Nos. 686-705.

Most of the records belonging to the Cinque Ports are kept in an iron chest at New Romney; some of them are in Dover Castle. The records at New Romney are: reports of the bailiffs who looked after the interests of the Cinque Ports at the Yarmouth fair, 1582-1630; the White Book, containing acts and decrees of the courts of brotherhood, 10 Hen. VI.—9 Eliz.; the Black Book or Register Book, containing acts of the courts of brotherhood, 14 Eliz.—1865. See No. 62.

There is no good detailed history of the Cinque Ports. Burrows (No. 689) gives the best general account. Much documentary material will be found in Jeake's Charters and Lyon's Dover (Nos. 680, 682). The works of Boys and Holloway (Nos. 687, 693) are also valuable.

The most valuable sources for the study of the medieval history of Irish boroughs are the Chartæ and Historic Documents (Nos. 714, 715). The Report of the Corporations Commission, Gale's Inquiry, and Lynch's Law of Election (Nos. 718, 722, 723) throw much light on the general history of the subject.

"The ordinary bibliographical dictionaries are woefully deficient in respect to Scottish books, and are frequently very inaccurate. Information on Scottish bibliography has to be sought in many devious ways, and the searcher has not seldom to go away disappointed by failure, or but moderately satisfied with scanty and doubtful information." — T. MASON, Public and Private Libraries of Glasgow (Glasgow, 1885), 24.

Though much material is accessible in the various collections of records and parliamentary reports, and in the works relating to particular towns, a good detailed history of Scotch burghs is still needed.

CANTERBURY.

a. Town Records, Nos. 1212–1216.

b. General Histories, etc., Nos. 1217–1224.

The city archives contain some valuable unpublished records. The proceedings in the burghmote court, which begin in Edward III.'s reign, throw much light upon municipal affairs. The chamberlains' accounts extend almost without a break from Richard II.'s reign to the present day.

There is need of a good history of this city; Brent, Hasted, and Somner (Nos. 1217, 1220, 1223) are useful but not satisfactory.

CARLISLE.

- a.* Town Records, Nos. 1227-1230.
- b.* General Histories, etc., Nos. 1231-1241.

There is no good detailed history of Carlisle. Ferguson's works (especially Nos. 321, 1229-30, 1233) are the most valuable, and Creighton's short history (No. 1231) is useful.

a. Town Records.

1227. Extracts from the charters of the city of Carlisle, 5 Hen. III.—13 Car. II. [First report of royal commission on market rights. Parl. Papers, 1888, liii. 89-90. London, 1889. f°.]

The city archives contain a rich collection of records, the most important of which are : the charters, beginning in 1171 ; the White Book, begun in the 13th century, containing miscellaneous documents ; the Chain Book, begun in the 14th century, containing town ordinances, etc. ; and the assembly rolls, from 1447 onward. The Calendar edited by Gilbert (No. 1407) is very valuable.

There is no good account of the municipal history of Dublin. The best general history is Gilbert's (No. 1415). The political tracts throw much light on municipal affairs in the 18th century.

a. Town Records, etc.

There is no good account of the municipal history of Exeter. The most useful work is Oliver's (No. 1570). In the town archives there exists the unpublished MS. of John Hooker's (or Vowell's) Annals of Exeter, from which Izacke and others freely borrowed much material. The town archives are also well stored with old records; these are well arranged and calendared, but no good collection has been printed.

a. Town Records.

1558. COTTON, W., and WOOLLCOMBE, H. Gleanings from the municipal and cathedral records relating to the history of the city of Exeter. Exeter, 1877. 8°.

Most of the extracts relate to the 16th and 17th centuries, and do not deal with municipal government.

1559. Exeter city muniments. Notes and Gleanings . . . of Devon and Cornwall, vols. ii.-v. Exeter, 1889-92. 4°.

A calendar of the records in the town archives.

1560. Letters and papers of John Shillingford, mayor of Exeter, 1447-50. Edited by S. A. Moore. Camden Society. [London,] 1871. 4°.

The letters and papers relate to a suit brought against the city by Edmund Lacy, bishop of Exeter. The quarrel turned upon the respective jurisdictions of the municipal corporation and the church.

1561. Translation (A) of a charter granted to the inhabitants of Exeter by King Charles the First. . . . By a citizen of Exeter [William Holmes]. Exeter, 1785. 4°.

There is no dearth of books relating to Glasgow, but there is still room for a good history of the burgh. The elaborate works edited by Gordon and Pagan (Nos. 1635, 1636) contain much undigested material. One of the best accounts of municipal history is furnished by MacGregor (No. 1638), and for recent times the work of Bell and Paton (No. 1627) is excellent. The records edited by Marwick (Nos. 1617, 1620) are of great value, and the Memorabilia (No. 1623) are useful. Among the histories of gilds those of most importance are Campbell's Cordiners, Crawfurd's Trades' House, and Hill's Merchants' House (Nos. 1648, 1649, 1658).

a. Town Records.

GLOUCESTER.

a. Town Records, Nos. 1678-1682.

b. General Histories, etc., Nos. 1683-1692.

The most important documents in the town archives are ancient deeds. Apart from these and the town charters, few of the medieval records have been preserved.

The most useful history is Fosbroke's (No. 1687). The two works edited by Stevenson (Nos. 1678, 1682) are valuable.

a. Town Records.

LEICESTER.

- a. Town Records, Nos. 1866-1875.
- b. General Histories, etc., 1876-1888.

The town archives contain one of the most valuable collections of municipal records in England. The earliest charters belong to the 12th century; the gild rolls begin with the reign of Richard I.; the chamberlains' accounts extend from 1587 to 1785; and the medieval borough Chartulary contains much interesting matter relating to the history of Leicester in the 13th and 14th centuries.

The best history of Leicester is Thompson's (No. 1885). The works of Nichols and Throsby (Nos. 624, 1888) are still useful.

a. Town Records.

From the vast array of books and pamphlets relating to London, only the more valuable have been selected. Many other titles will be found in the bibliographies mentioned below, especially in the Catalogue of the Guildhall Library.

a. Bibliographies.

See also the general bibliographies mentioned above, especially those of Anderson, Gough, Smith, and Upcott (Nos. 1, 5, 14, 15); and the British Museum Catalogue of Printed Books (1889), under "London."

1964. Catalogue of the Guildhall library of the city of London, with additions to June, 1889. London, 1889. 8°.

1965. CLARKE, JOHN. Bibliotheca legum. . . . New edition. London, 1819. 8°.

Charters, customs, etc. of London, 45-58.

1966. TYRRELL, EDWARD. Catalogue of the valuable and singularly curious library of Edward Tyrrell, late city remembrancer . . . sold by auction by Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge . . . on Monday, 4th April, 1864, and four following days. London, [1864.] 8°.

1967. WELCH, CHARLES. Bibliography of the livery companies of London. The Library, ii. 301-7. London, 1890. 8°.

A brief account of the principal works relating to the companies.

1968. — Notes on London municipal literature, and a suggested scheme for its classification. A paper read before the Bibliographical Society on 10 June, 1894. London, 1895. 4°.

b. Town Records.

Delpit (No. 1974), p. cii., comments as follows upon the richness of the city archives: "C'est certainement une grande gloire pour la commune de Londres de posséder des archives non-seulement plus complètes que celles d'aucune autre ville, mais que ces archives renferment on peut dire les titres de la nation elle-même."

The principal series of records are: the letter books, 1275-1590, containing historical memoranda of ordinances, charters, etc.; journals of the common council, from 1416 to the present time; repertories of the court of aldermen, from 1495 to the present time; rolls of pleas and memoranda, Edw. II.—Rich. III.; Remembrancia, copies of correspondence between the civic authorities and distinguished persons, relating to the affairs of London, 1579-1664; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, etc. (No. 1979).

For collections of charters, see Nos. 2020, 2032, 2035, 2043.

1969. Analytical index to the series of records known as the Remembrancia, preserved among the archives of London, A.D. 1579-1664. Prepared by the authority of the corporation of London, under the superintendence of the library committee. [By W. H. and H. C. Overall.] London, 1878. 8°.

Earlier edition, "Analytical indexes to volumes ii. and viii. of the series of records known as the Remembrancia," 1870.

1970. Calendar of letters from the mayor and corporation of the city of London, circa A.D. 1350-1370, enrolled and preserved among the archives of the corporation at the Guildhall. Edited, with an introduction, by Reginald R. Sharpe. Printed by order of the corporation. . . . London, 1885. 8°.

These letters throw light mainly on the intercourse of London with the chief municipalities of Flanders and England.

1971. Calendar of wills proved and enrolled in the court of Hustling, London, A.D. 1258-A.D. 1688, preserved . . . at the Guildhall. Edited, with introduction, by R. R. Sharpe. Published by order of the corporation. . . . 2 vols. London, 1889-90. 8°.

An elaborate work, well edited.

1972. Corporation records. Report to the court of common council from the library committee, presented 16th December, 1869. [London, 1869.] f°.

1973. — Further report . . . 24th November, 1870. [London, 1870.] f°.

These two reports describe the records of the corporation.

1974. DELPIT, JULES. Collection générale des documents français qui se trouvent en Angleterre. Tome premier. Archives de la mairie de Londres. . . . Paris, 1847. 4°.

For a description of the records in the Guildhall of London, with extracts, see pp. xliii.-cii.

1975. FRESHFIELD, EDWIN. A discourse on some unpublished records of the city of London. London, 1887. 4°. pp. 35.

Deals particularly with the parish records.

1976. HUGO, THOMAS. "The Liber Albus," and other records of the corporation of London. . . . London and Middlesex Archaeol Soc., Transactions, i. 245-58. London, 1860. 8°.

1977. [JUNGHANS, WILHELM.] Bericht des Herrn Dr. Jungbans. Sybel's Historische Zeitschrift, Band iv., Beilage, 23-39. München, 1860. 8°.

A good account of the contents of the archives in Guildhall.

1978. * Memorials of London and London life, in the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries [to 1419] : being a series of extracts, local, social, and political, from the early archives of the city of London, A. D. 1276-1419. Selected, translated, and edited by H. T. Riley. Published by order of the corporation. . . . London, 1868. 8°.

Contains extracts from the letter books.

1979. * Mumenta Gildhallæ Londoniensis: Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn. Edited by H. T. Riley. Rolls Series. 4 vols. London, 1859-62. 8°.

Vol. i. Liber Albus, by John Carpenter, 1419.

Vol. ii. (2 pts.). Liber Custumarum, circa 1320.

Vol. iii. Translations of the Anglo-Norman passages in Liber Albus; glossaries, etc.

Liber Horn, 1311, probably compiled by Andrew Horn; not published.

These volumes contain valuable documents illustrating the social, legal, and constitutional history of London, especially during the 13th and 14th centuries.

1980. — Liber Albus: the White Book of the city of London, compiled A. D. 1419 by John Carpenter, common clerk, Richard Whittington, mayor. Translated from the original Latin and Anglo-Norman by H. T. Riley. London, 1861. 8°.

1981. ORRIDGE, B. B. The corporation of London and their records. Macmillan's Magazine, xx. 562-7. London, 1869. 8°.

Of little value.

c. Chronicles.

Most of these chronicles were written by citizens of London. The events are arranged under the names of the mayors and sheriffs; more attention is given to the political occurrences of the kingdom than to municipal affairs.

See No. 2017.

1982. Chronicle of the Grey Friars of London [1189-1556.] Edited by John Gough Nichols. Camden Society. [London], 1852. 4°.

Deals mainly with the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI. See No. 3089.

1983. Chronicle (A) of London from 1089 to 1483, written in the fifteenth century, and for the first time printed from MSS. in the British Museum; to which are added numerous contemporary illustrations, consisting of royal letters, poems, and other articles descriptive of public events, or of the manners and customs of the metropolis. [Edited by E. Tyrrell.] London, 1827. 4°.

Written in English about 1442; continued to 1483.

1984. Chronicles of the mayors and sheriffs of London, A. D. 1188 to A. D. 1274; translated from the original Latin and Anglo-Norman of the "Liber de antiquis legibus" . . . attributed to Arnald Fitz-Thedmar, alderman of London in the reign of Henry the Third. The French chronicle of London, A. D. 1259 to A. D. 1343; translated from the original Anglo-Norman of the "Croniques de London." . . . With notes and illustrations by H. T. Riley. London, 1863. 4°.

1985. Chronicles of the reigns of Edward I. and Edward II. Edited by William Stubbs. Rolls Series. 2 vols. London, 1882-83. 8°.

Vol. i. Annales Londonienses, 1194-1330, and Annales Paulini, 1307-1341.

1986. Croniques de London, depuis l'an 44 Hen. III. jusqu'à l'an 17 Edw. III. Edited from a MS. in the Cottonian Library by G. I. Aungier. Camden Society. London, 1844. 4°.

Translated by Edmund Goldsmid: "The Chronicles of London from 44 Hen. III. to 17 Edw. III.", 3 vols., Edinburgh, 1885-86, 8°. See No. 1984.

Contains little concerning the municipal affairs of London.

1987. * De antiquis legibus liber: cronica maiorum et vicecomitum Londoniarum et quedam que contingebant temporibus illis ab anno 1178 ad annum 1274; cum appendice. Nunc primum typis mandata curante T. Stapleton. Camden Society. London, 1846. 4°.

See No. 1984.

1988. FABYAN, ROBERT. The new chronicles of England and France, in two parts, by Robert Fabyan; named by himself the concordance of histories. Reprinted from Pynson's edition of 1516; the first part collated with the editions of 1533, 1542, and 1559, and the second with a manuscript of the author's own time, as well as the subsequent editions; including the different continuations. To which are added a biographical and literary preface and an index, by Henry Ellis. London, 1811. 4°.

Fabyan was an alderman of London, who died in 1512.

1989. Historical collections (The) of a citizen of London in the fifteenth century. . . . iii. William Gregory's Chronicle of London [1189-1469.] Edited by James Gairdner. Camden Society. [London,] 1876. 4°.

1990. London chronicle during the reigns of Henry VII. and Henry VIII. Edited from the original MS. in the Cottonian library by Clarence Hooper. Camden Society, Miscellany, iv. 1-18. London, 1859. 4°.

A brief chronicle from 1500 to 1545.

1991. Three fifteenth-century chronicles, with historical memoranda by John Stowe. Edited by James Gairdner. Camden Society. [London,] 1880. 4°.

Pp. 1-80 contain a London chronicle in English, probably written in the reign of Edward IV. It extends from the earliest time to 4 Edward IV. Down to the reign of Henry V. it is of little value.

1991a. WROTHESLEY, CHARLES. A chronicle of England during the reigns of the Tudors, from A. D. 1485 to 1559. Edited . . . by W. D. Hamilton. Camden Society. 2 vols. [London,] 1875-77. 4°.

Written during the reigns of Henry VIII. and Elizabeth.

Based upon Arnold (No. 2017) down to 1522.

d. General Histories.

The most useful works are those of Loftie, Maitland, Noorthouck, Norton, and Stow (Nos. 1999, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2006). A good account of the constitutional history of London is still needed.

1992. ALLEN, THOMAS. The history and antiquities of London, Westminster, Southwark, and parts adjacent. 4 vols. London, 1827-29. 8°.

1993. CHAMBERLAIN, HENRY. A new and compleat history and survey of the cities of London and Westminster, the borough of Southwark, and parts adjacent . . . their laws, charters, customs, privileges, immunities, government, trade, and navigation. . . . By a society of gentlemen. Revised, corrected, and improved by Henry Chamberlain, of Hatton-Garden. London, [1769.] f°.

b. Gilds and Companies.

The most useful general works are those of Hazlitt and Herbert (Nos. 2093, 2094) and the Report of 1884 (No. 2087). Much material relating to the medieval gilds will be found in the records edited by Riley (Nos. 1978, 1979), and there are many references to the modern companies in the Calendars of State Papers (No 170). It is difficult to separate the history of the civic corporation from that of the livery companies; the cry for reform has been directed against both: see especially Nos. 2170, 2187, 2191, 2203, 2221, 2222.

Welch (No. 1967) gives a brief account of the works relating to particular companies. Most of them are privately printed, and even the Guildhall Library has not all of them.

i. Municipal Reform.

The parliamentary reports, especially those of 1837, 1854, and 1884 (Nos. 2087, 2221, 2222), throw much light on this subject. Various reform bills have been introduced during the past fifty years, notably in the years 1852, 1856, 1858-60, 1867-70, 1875, 1880, 1884-85; the discussions in Parliament are set forth in Hansard's Debates. The strongest plea in favor of reform will be found in Firth's Municipal London (No. 2187); and the ablest defence of the corporation in Scott's Vindication (No. 2229).

NORWICH.

- a.* Town Records, Nos. 2467-2471.
- b.* General Histories, Nos. 2472-2479.
- c.* Gilds, Nos. 2480-2483.
- d.* Miscellaneous, Nos. 2484-2497.

The following are the principal town records, with the dates when they begin: royal charters, Hen. II., etc.; court rolls, 1284; court books, 1492; assembly rolls, 1365; assembly books, 1440; chamberlains' rolls, 1375; Old Free-Book, containing admissions to the freedom, rentals, deeds, etc., Edw. II.; Domesday Book, containing rents, grants of land, etc., mainly in Henry VI.'s reign.

The best general history of Norwich is Blomefield's (No. 628). Hudson's Leet Jurisdiction and his other works (Nos. 2471, 2487-2491) are scholarly contributions to the history of the city. The volume on the Town Close Estate (No. 2468) is also valuable.

NOTTINGHAM.

- a. Town Records, Nos. 2498-2500.
- b. General Histories, Nos. 2501-2506.
- c. Miscellaneous, Nos. 2507-2513.

The town archives contain royal charters from Henry II.'s time onward; rolls of the borough court, beginning in 1303; hall books, since 1548; deeds, etc. The Red Book, containing old customs and ordinances of the town, was destroyed by a fire in 1724; and the early mayoralty rolls have been lost.

The best histories of Nottingham are Blackner's and Deering's (Nos. 2501, 2502). Stevenson's Records (No. 2499) is a model work of its kind; his volume of royal charters (No. 2500) is also valuable. These two publications form a good basis for a new history of the town government.

a. Town Records.

2498. HEATHCOTE, CHARLES. An English translation of the charter of Henry VI. to the burgesses of the town and county of the town of Nottingham ; confirmed by letters patent of King William and Queen Mary. To which is prefixed an introductory address to the burgesses of the said town. Nottingham, [1807.] 8°.

This is an inspeximus of the earlier charters. See Nos. 2501-2503.

2499. * Records of the borough of Nottingham [1155-1625] : being a series of extracts from the archives of the corporation of Nottingham. [Edited by W. H. Stevenson.] Published under the authority of the corporation of Nottingham. 4 vols. London and Nottingham, 1882-89. 8°.

The Latin and French texts are accompanied with a translation.

2500. Royal charters granted to the burgesses of Nottingham, 1155-1712. [Edited by W. H. Stevenson.] Issued by order of the corporation of Nottingham. London and Nottingham, 1890. 8°.

Latin texts, with an English translation.

Valuable.

b. General Histories.

See No. 639.

2501. BLACKNER, JOHN. The history of Nottingham, embracing its antiquities, trade, and manufactures, from the earliest authentic records to the present period. Nottingham, 1815. 4°.

There is quite a detailed account of municipal history on pp. 252-87, and a translation of the town charters on pp. 411-37.

2502. DEERING, CHARLES. Nottinghamia vetus et nova : or an historical account of the ancient and present state of the town of Nottingham. . . . Nottingham, 1751. 4°.

Sect. vi. contains abstracts of the town charters, etc.

The appendix contains the Latin inspeximus of 27 Henry VI.; the case of William Sacheverell, etc.

2503. † History (The), antiquities, and present state of the town of Nottingham ; with an appendix, containing a translation of the charter of Henry VI. to the burgesses of Nottingham. . . . Nottingham, 1807. 12°.

2504. SUTTON, J. F. The date-book of remarkable and memorable events connected with Nottingham and its neighbourhood, 1750-1850. London and Nottingham, 1852. 8°.

2505. THROSBY, JOHN. The history and antiquities of the town and county of the town of Nottingham: containing the whole of Thoroton's account of that place [No. 640], and all that is valuable in Deering. Nottingham, 1795. 4°.

2506. WYLIE, W. H. Old and new Nottingham. London and Nottingham, 1853. 8°.

Ch. xv. Local government.
A popular history of the town.

c. Miscellaneous.

2507. Coke and Birch. The paper war carried on at the Nottingham election, 1803: containing the whole of the addresses, songs, squibs, etc. circulated by the contending parties; including the books of accidents and chances. Nottingham, [1803.] 8°.

2508. HINE, T. C. Nottingham: its castle, a military fortress, a royal palace, a ducal mansion, a blackened ruin, a museum and gallery of art. With [brief] notes relating to the borough of Nottingham. London and Nottingham, 1876. 4°.

A supplement appeared in 1879.

2509. Nottingham corporation. A report of the evidence given before the commissioners appointed to enquire into municipal corporations. Taken in short-hand by Thomas Cockayne. Nottingham, 1833. 8°.

See No. 60.

2510. † Nottingham election petition of 1803. Nottingham, 1803. 8°.

Contains material relating to the history of Nottingham elections.

2511. † Ten letters, principally upon the subject of the late contested election at Nottingham. London, 1803. 8°.

2512. † — Two letters, principally upon the subject of the late contested election at Nottingham. London, 1802. 8°.

2513. Tryal (The) of William Sacheverell, Esq., and several other gentlemen, for a riot committed at Nottingham, on the election of a mayor of that town; before the lord chief justice Jefferies, at the King's-Bench bar, in Easter term, 1684. To which is added the case of the town of Nottingham, drawn up by Mr. Sacheverell. London, 1720. f°.

This is one of the cases which arose out of the royal attacks upon the charters of corporations.

See Nos 195, 2502.

OKEHAMPTON.

2514. BRIDGES, W. B. Some account of the barony and town of Okehampton: its antiquities and institutions. . . . A new edition, with additional chapters, edited by W. H. K. Wright. Tiverton, 1889. 8°.

Reprinted from the East of Fife Record.

PLYMOUTH.

The Gildhall of Plymouth contains a rich collection of muniments. The regular series of records begin in 1486 with the receivers' accounts, which are practically complete to the present day. The most valuable volume of records is the Black Book, a register of by-laws, gild ordinances, and other interesting matters relating to the town, 1441–1709. Next in importance are the White Book (used from 1560 to 1754 for the entry of town ordinances, etc.), and Simon Carswell's Book, containing proceedings of the town courts, deeds, etc., Hen. VI.—Hen. VII.

Few boroughs have records as complete as those of Shrewsbury. Some of the oldest gild merchant rolls in England are preserved in the archives of that town; this series extends from 1209 to 1511. The bailiffs' and mayors' accounts (beginning in 1257) and the court rolls (beginning in 1272) extend, with few breaks, to the present day.

The best general history of Shrewsbury is Owen and Blakeway's (No. 2773). Hibbert and Leighton (Nos. 546, 2783) give good accounts of the craft gilds.

WINCHESTER.

- a.* Town Records, Nos. 2976-2986.
- b.* General Histories, Nos. 2987-2992.

The oldest roll in the town archives contains the proceedings of a borough court held in the last years of Henry III.'s reign. The Black Book of Winchester is in the British Museum (Additional MS. 6036); it contains the acts and proceedings of the corporation of Winchester from Richard II. to 5 Edward VI.

There is no good account of the municipal history. The best books are Woodward's, Kitchin's, and Milner's (Nos. 611, 2991, 2992). Among the publications of records, Nos. 537, 2976, 2981, 2984 are valuable.

- a. Town Records, Nos. 3032–3034.
- b. General Histories, Nos. 3035–3043.
- c. Miscellaneous, Nos. 3044–3049.

The most valuable town records are the borough court rolls, from 1290 to 1670; they contain much information concerning municipal affairs. The archives also contain: royal charters, 9 John—2 Anne; leet rolls, 1366–1653; the Book of Oaths and Ordinances, Edw. I.—Charles II.; assembly books, 1550–1840; books of entries, 30 Hen. VIII.—1860; a borough chartulary, compiled in 1580, etc.

The best history of Yarmouth is Swinden's (No. 3043). Palmer's works (Nos. 3040, 3041) are also valuable.

a. Town Records.

Ch. ii. Ancient customs (i. e. ordinances, 1272 and 1491).

Ch. vi. Representation of the borough in Parliament.

A good book.

3041. PALMER, C. J. The parliamentation of Great Yarmouth, with Gorleston and Snettisham. 3 vols. Great Yarmouth, 1872-73. 4°.

This is a good topographical work; it also contains many references to municipal affairs.

3042. PASTOR, JEAN. The picture of Yarmouth: being a comprehensive history and description of all the public establishments within that borough . . . Yarmouth, 1819. 8°.

Of little value for municipal history.

3043. *SWEENEY, HENRY. The history and antiquities of the ancient borough of Great Yarmouth, in the county of Norfolk. Collected from the corporation charters, records, and evidences, and other the most authentic materials. Norwich, 1772. 4°.

Contains municipal ordinances temp. Hen. III. to Rich. II., and 1491; the town charter in full; and other valuable documents.

One of the best of England's older town histories.

YORK.

- a.* Town Records, Nos. 3050-3052.
- b.* General Histories, Nos. 3053-3060.
- c.* Gilds, Nos. 3061-3069.
- d.* Miscellaneous, Nos. 3070-3073.

There are some valuable records in the town archives which should be published: for example, a book of "memoranda" begun in the time of John Santone, mayor, 1376, containing many ordinances relating to craft gilds, etc.; minute books, from 1476 to the present time; enrollments of deeds and inquisitions, from 1340 to Charles II. (containing also ordinances of crafts).

The best history is Drake's (No. 3054), but it contains many errors. Davies's volume of records (No. 3050) is valuable.

a. Town Records.

3050. Extracts from the municipal records of the city of York, during the reigns of Edward IV., Edward V., and Richard III.; with notes illustrative and explanatory, and an appendix containing some account of the celebration of the Corpus Christi festival at York in the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries. By Robert Davies. London, 1843. 8°.

The extracts are from the chamberlains' accounts and the minutes of the proceedings of the city council.

Valuable.

3051. †GENT, THOMAS. The customs and orders of the lord mayor, aldermen, sheriffs, four-and-twenty, and commons of the city of York, touching the wearing of their gowns, treats at elections, and other ancient customs. York, 1731. 12°.

Contains some brief allusions to municipal history.

3054. *DRAKE, FRANCIS. Eboracum : or the history and antiquities of the city of York, from its original to the present times ; together with the history of the cathedral church. . . . In two books. London, 1736. 8°.

Contains the early town charters in full ; extracts from town ordinances, 1519-1684, etc.

One of the best works of the old school of English topographers.

3055. Eboracum : or the history and antiquities of the city of York, from its origin to this time ; together with an account of the Ainsty, or county of the same. . . . 2 vols. York, 1788. 8°.

3056. [GENT, THOMAS.] The ancient and modern history of the city of York . . . an account of the mayors and bayliffs, lord mayors and sheriffs. . . . The whole diligently collected by T. G. York and London, 1730. 8°.

Contains only a few brief notes relating to municipal history.

3057. HARGROVE, WILLIAM. History and description of the ancient city of York : comprising all the most interesting information already published in Drake's Eboracum ; enriched with much entirely new matter. . . . 2 vols. York, 1818. 8°.

3058. History (The) and antiquities of the city of York, from its origin to the present times. . . . 3 vols. York, 1785. 12°.

Based on Drake.

A large part of vol. ii. is devoted to municipal history. Contains the early town charters ; extracts from municipal ordinances, 1550-1650, etc.

3059. RAINES, JAMES. York. [Historic Towns. Edited by E. A. Freeman and W. Hunt.] London, 1893. 8°.

A good little book, but the account of municipal history is brief.

3060. TORR, JAMES. The antiquities of York city, and the civil government thereof ; with a list of all the mayors and bayliffs. . . . Collected from the papers of Christopher Hildyard, Esq. With notes. . . . York, 1719. 8°.

Contains only brief notes concerning municipal history.

c. Gilds.

Harvard Historical Studies.

Published under the Direction of the Department of History and Government from the Income of the Henry Warren Torrey Fund.

THIS SERIES will comprise works of original research selected from the recent writings of teachers and graduate students in the Department of History and Government in Harvard University. The series will also include collections of documents, bibliographies, reprints of rare tracts, etc. The monographs will appear at irregular intervals; but it is hoped that three volumes will be published annually.

The following volumes are now ready, or in the press.

- I. THE SUPPRESSION OF THE AFRICAN SLAVE-TRADE TO THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, 1638-1870. By W. E. B. Du Bois, Ph.D., Professor in Wilberforce University. 8vo. pp. xi-335. $1.50 net.
- II. THE CONTEST OVER THE RATIFICATION OF THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION IN THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS. By S. B. HARDING, A.M., Assistant Professor of History in Indiana University. 8vo. pp. vi-194. $1.25 net.
- III. A CRITICAL STUDY OF NULLIFICATION IN SOUTH CAROLINA. By D. F. HOUSTON, A.M., Adjunct Professor of Political Science in the University of Texas. 8vo. pp. x-169. $1.25 net.
